3(1) An emergency intervention order may be granted without notice by a designated justice of the peace if that designated justice of the peace determines that:

- (a) interpersonal violence has occurred; and
- (b) by reason of seriousness or urgency, the order should be made without waiting for the next available sitting of a judge of the court in order to ensure the immediate protection of the victim.

(2) In determining whether an emergency intervention order should be made, the designated justice of the peace shall consider, but is not limited to considering, the following factors:

- (a) the nature of the interpersonal violence;
- (b) the history of interpersonal violence by the respondent towards the victim or other family members;
- (c) the existence of immediate danger to persons or property;

- (e) the exposure of any child to interpersonal violence;
- (f) a recent change in circumstances for the respondent such as loss of employment or release from incarceration;
- (g) controlling behaviour by the respondent;
- (h) a particular vulnerability of the victim.

(2.1) In determining whether an emergency intervention order should be made, the following factors must not preclude a designated justice of the peace from making the order:

- (a) whether an order pursuant to this Act or other order of the court, or a restraining order or other order of any other court ordering the respondent not to contact or communicate with the victim, has been granted previously;
- (b) whether the respondent has previously complied with an order pursuant to this Act or other order of the court, or restraining order or order of any other court ordering the respondent not to contact or communicate with the victim;
- (c) whether the respondent is temporarily absent from the residence at the time of application for an order;
- (d) whether the victim is temporarily residing in an emergency shelter or other safe place;
- (e) whether criminal charges have been or may be laid against the respondent;
- (f) whether the victim has a history of returning to the relationship or of cohabiting with the respondent after occurrences of interpersonal violence.

(3) An emergency intervention order may contain any or all of the following provisions:

- (b) a provision directing a peace officer to remove, immediately or within a specified time, the respondent from the residence;

- (e) a provision restraining the respondent from attending at or near or entering any specified place that is attended regularly by the victim or other family members, including the residence, property, business, school or place of employment of the victim or other family members;

- (2) Within three working days of receipt of the order and all supporting documentation by the court, or, if a judge is not available within that period, as soon as one can be made available, a judge shall:
- (a) review the order in his or her chambers; and
 - (b) confirm the order where the judge is satisfied that there was evidence before the designated justice of the peace to support the granting of the order.
- (3) For all purposes, including appeal or variation, an order that is confirmed by a judge pursuant to subsection (2) is deemed to be an order of the court granted on an application without notice.

- (6) The evidence that was before the designated justice of the peace shall be considered as evidence at the rehearing.
- (7) At a rehearing, the onus is on the respondent to demonstrate, on a balance of probabilities, why the order should not be confirmed.
- (8) Where the respondent fails to attend the rehearing, the order may be confirmed in the respondent's absence.
- (9) At the rehearing, the judge may confirm, terminate or vary the order or any provision in the order.
