Liability for damages

(2) The action shall be brought in the Court of Queen’s Bench.

R.S.S. 1978, c.F-11, s.3.

Who benefits by action

4(1) Every action shall be for the benefit of the spouse, parent and child of the person whose death was so caused, and except as provided by section 8 shall be brought by and in the name of the executor or administrator of the deceased, and in every action such damages may be awarded as are proportioned to the injury resulting from the death to the persons respectively for whom and for whose benefit the action is brought, and the amount so recovered, after deducting the costs not recovered from the defendant, shall be divided among the before mentioned persons in such shares as may be determined at the trial.

(2) In an action brought under this Act damages may also be awarded in respect of:

- (a) any medical or hospital expenses of the person injured, consequent upon the injury, that would have been recoverable as damages by the person injured if death had not ensued;
- (b) the funeral expenses of the deceased person;
- (c) the cost of grief counselling;
- (d) loss of earnings for the period in which the persons by whom or for whose benefit the action is brought are unable to work because of the death; and
- (e) any other out-of-pocket expenses reasonably incurred as a consequence of the death;

if those expenses have been incurred by any of the parties for whom and for whose benefit the action is brought.

(3) In assessing the damages in the action there shall not be taken into account any sum paid or payable on the death of the deceased or any future premiums payable under any contract of assurance or insurance whenever effected.
